CRAFTSMAN GLAZING JOINS SLUNG! INSTALLATION TEAM

Vancouver, BC – March 17, 2009 - Slung Suspended Systems Corp., a custom, crafter of premium sliding glass doors and movable wall systems, welcomes Craftsman Glazing & Skylights to its distribution network. Joining Installation Partners and Registered Sales Agencies from Vancouver and Toronto, Craftsman has become part of Slung's recent expansion of distribution channels.

Operating out of Port Coquitlam, BC, Craftsman has been serving the Vancouver market and its surrounding area for decades and is celebrating 30 years in business this year. Over the years Craftsman has installed an array of glazing products with countless applications but currently has a focus on high-end residential projects.

Childhood friends Dave Hogg and Brian Potter started the company together nearly three decades ago and still remain partners in the business that today has 10 employees. Their longest serving installer Brian Taylor has been with Craftsman for 15 years now and brings a wealth of knowledge and experience to their high-end glazing installs.

This experience working with a discerning, high-end clientele is what attracted Craftsman to partner with Slung! and further their ability to meet client needs. Slung Systems provide a balance between function and innovation in design and Craftsman recognized the value in Slung!'s product offering and varied applications.

Craftsman fabricates and installs T-Bar and Pressure Plate skylights as well as frameless railings and shower enclosures. Over the years, the partners have gravitated towards high-end curtain wall projects for both commercial and residential applications. Craftsman Glazing has become a leader in large and challenging curtain wall installs in the the Vancouver market. Being custom crafted, Slung's 96 square foot panels that can weigh up to 1000 lbs each and often fall into each of these categories, large and challenging. Glaziers of Craftsman's ability and experience help Slung! deliver custom applications and satisfy project design criteria.
